Sarah Ross is a social worker who has dedicated her life to helping refugees. She founded the International Rescue Committee (IRC) in Clarkston, and under her leadership, the IRC has helped thousands of refugees resettle in the United States.

Ross's work has not been without its challenges. Clarkston is a conservative town, and some residents were initially resistant to the idea of welcoming refugees. But Ross persevered, and she has gradually won over the hearts and minds of her neighbors.

Today, Clarkston is a thriving community that is home to refugees from over 50 countries. The IRC provides a variety of services to refugees, including housing, job training, and education. The IRC also helps refugees to integrate into American society and to build new lives for themselves.

Ross's work is an inspiration to us all. She has shown us that it is possible to make a difference in the world, even in the face of adversity. Her story is a reminder that we all have a responsibility to help those who are less fortunate than ourselves.

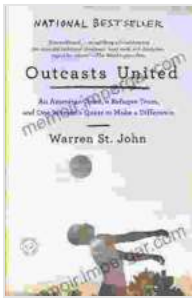

A Must-Read for Anyone Who Cares About Refugees

An American Town, a Refugee Team, and One Woman's Quest to Make a Difference is a must-read for anyone who cares about refugees. Ross's story is both heartbreaking and inspiring, and it will stay with you long after you finish reading it.

This book is a testament to the power of community and the importance of helping others. It is a story that will give you hope and inspire you to make a difference in the world.
