Chapters of Bankruptcy

There are two main chapters of bankruptcy: Chapter 7 and Chapter 13.

- Chapter 7 bankruptcy is a liquidation bankruptcy. This means that the debtor's nonexempt property is sold and the proceeds are distributed to creditors.

- Chapter 13 bankruptcy is a reorganization bankruptcy. This means that the debtor proposes a plan to repay their debts over a period of time. If the plan is approved by the court, the debtor will be protected from creditors while they make their payments.

Filing Procedures

To file for bankruptcy, the debtor must file a petition with the bankruptcy court. The petition must include a list of the debtor's assets and debts, as well as a statement of the debtor's income and expenses. The debtor must also file a plan for repaying their debts if they are filing for Chapter 13 bankruptcy.

Once the petition is filed, the debtor will be assigned a bankruptcy trustee. The trustee will oversee the bankruptcy process and ensure that the debtor's assets are properly distributed to creditors.
