Initiation of Arbitration

The first step in any international investment arbitration is the initiation of arbitration. This typically involves the investor submitting a request for arbitration to the relevant arbitral institution. The request for arbitration must contain certain information, such as the names of the parties, the subject matter of the dispute, and the relief sought. Once the request for arbitration has been submitted, the arbitral institution will appoint an arbitral tribunal to hear the case.

Conduct of Arbitration Proceedings

The conduct of arbitration proceedings is governed by the applicable arbitration rules. These rules will typically set out the procedures for the exchange of pleadings, the taking of evidence, and the issuance of awards. The arbitral tribunal will also have the power to make procedural rulings, such as Free Downloads for the production of documents or the examination of witnesses.

Enforcement of Arbitral Awards

Once an arbitral award has been issued, it is generally binding on the parties to the arbitration. However, the award may not be enforceable in all jurisdictions. In Free Download to enforce an arbitral award, the investor may need to apply to a court in the country where the award was issued or where the award debtor has assets.

International Conventions and Rules

There are a number of international conventions and rules that govern international investment arbitration. These conventions and rules include the New York Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, the ICSID Convention, and the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules. These conventions and rules provide a framework for the conduct of international investment arbitration and help to ensure the enforceability of arbitral awards.

Procedural Issues in International Investment Arbitration is a comprehensive and up-to-date guide to the procedural aspects of international investment arbitration. It provides a detailed analysis of the various international conventions and rules that govern international investment arbitration, and it offers practical guidance on the initiation of arbitration, the conduct of arbitration proceedings, and the enforcement of arbitral awards. This book is an essential resource for anyone involved in international investment arbitration.
